A Brief Biography

Portraying tomorrow's memories today...that's how Tom Sierak likes to describe his pastel paintings. He says, "People often talk about the good ol' days and how nice it would be to return to them but in many ways, I think we're still living those days. Places and things may change around us, but the bond that exists between children, parents, grandparents, and even pets, never does".

A native of Newburyport, Massachusetts, Tom Sierak is a graduate of the Vesper George School of Art in Boston, MA. During his art school training, he came to greatly admire artists such as Ingres, Vermeer, Rockwell, and others while perfecting his drawing skills and absorbing the knowledge and experience of many accomplished art instructors with whom he studied. Among them were Robert Douglass Hunter, Paul Rahilly, and Charles Cooper.

The New Englander's medium of choice are pastels and he is one of the few figurative artists today who create such finished paintings with this somewhat unfamiliar medium. He finds being able to combine his drawing skills with the unlimited color selection of pastels an ideal combination. He paints primarily in his native New England, with subject matter ranging from children & pets, to family scenes involving parents, children & grandparents, figurative romanticism, and coastal landscapes.

Tom says, "A little part of me goes into each painting, but the people I portray are the real story. I like to think of my pastels as the pen that puts the 'words' on paper. I choose to convey positive messages through my work. If there is a statement to be found, I suppose it would be of a traditional conservative one based in strong family ties and values." At the same time, he finds that quiet moments of solitude in paintings such as "Silhouettes" convey as much visual uplift and pleasure as "Partners In Crime". He also enjoys painting an occasional landscape or seascape, such as "Camden Harbor" or "Heading Out".

His work has been published and distributed worldwide as wall prints, greeting cards, books, puzzles, and catalog covers to mention a few. He also self publishes limited and unlimited editions of his paintings under the name STS Fine Art. His paintings are in numerous private collections throughout North America. He has been commissioned by notable organizations such as The Make-A-Wish Foundation, Reminisce magazine, and numerous private companies. He has been the featured cover artist in The Artist's Magazine and had many works published in Ideals magazine.
